Excellent quality from Georgia on kale, collard and mustard greens.

MARKETNOTES

PRODUCE MARKET REPORT

JANUARY 10, 2022

WINTER FAVORITES

CITRUS,
CRANBERRIES & MORE

We have all your winter favorites in stock. Cranberries are available for cocktails and sauces. Sweet and tart kumquats are in for adding bursts of flavor. Quince is perfect for delicious jellies and jams.

PEAK SEASON

TOMATOES

Plenty of supplies on all varieties, with great quality due to optimal growing conditions in Florida.

LETTUCE

Excellent supply and quality on red and green leaf. Romaine is steady, but some cool weather on the plant. Low volume on iceberg due to labor issues, but quality is good.

MELONS

Melons have started in Central America which has eased the market. Watermelons are new crop from Florida with tight prices. Dealing with high freight rates to start the new year.

BERRIES

Blackberries are in transition, but volume is steady. Volume is low on raspberries due to cool weather and blueberries due to transportation issues and freezing temps.

CELERY

Quality is good and market is improving.

POTATOES

Market is holding steady on all varieties, just dealing with high freight rates.

STONE FRUIT

Chilean peaches are in stock, cherries are available with notice.

BROCCOLI

Quality remains excellent, but volume is lighter out of the growing regions due to weather.

ONIONS

There's a seasonal shortage from now until March; freight rates are impacting prices. Jumbos will tend to be smaller due to the excessive heat this past summer stunting the crop's growth.

MANGOES

Lighter supplies due to transportation issues.

ALERT

MUSHROOMS

We are still in critical supply issues on most fresh mushrooms. There have been some improvements, but buttons, oysters, and sliced remain extremely tight supplies. Maitakes and enoki are still not available.

LIMES

There's low volume crossing the border due to driver shortages. Quality is excellent, but demand is high after the holiday

slow-down. ASPARAGUS

Air freight continues to impact the volume entering the market. Jumbos are tight.

BRUSSELS SPROUTS

Harvest was impacted by rain weather last week, but we should see volume increase steadily now. Quality is great.

GRAPES

Demand exceeds supply until the volume in Chile increases.

AVOCADOS

Quality is excellent, but market is high due to rising labor and transportation costs.

CAULIFLOWER

Cool weather has slowed down the growing process and spiked up the market.

BANANAS

All grower-shippers have implemented increased prices on all sizes due to continued higher costs on farming, packaging, and transportation.

WET VEG

Leeks and green onions are active due to high demand and freezing temperatures.

GINGER + PEELED GARLIC

There's more availability on both ginger and garlic as more growing regions are shipping now. Prices are improving.
